RESUME AFTER EIGHTEEN YEARS

The much talked of mill on the Johnny Consolidated Gold Mining Company's property has at last commenced operations, says the Mining Record. The engines were started on December 24, and immediately the stamps were connected up and a new era had been inaugurated in the Johnny district. It is the first time in over ten years that the sound of the stamps have been heard in the district. About eighteen years ago the Mormons came out of Utah and discovered the property, that, in the evolution of events, was to become the Johnnie Consolidated. After they had done but slight development work, they erected a mill upon the property. This was considerable of an undertaking, as the machinery was brought from a great distance by wagon train. As many other men have done in the mining business, they commenced by reading the last chapter first. But more through good fortune than mining ability, they took out bullion to the amount of $250,000. The ore handled generally ran over $30 to the ton. The mill, a good one in its day, was unable to handle any of the great bodies of low grade ore that were exposed. No greater depth than 300 feet was obtained and tunnels were not driven to exceed 200 feet either way from the main shaft. As it was found unprofitable to mill the ore found at the 300-foot level, and thinking that the mine had played out, the owners closed down and the buildings and machinery have since remained there, a monument to pioneer mill construction. At about this time there was a mill in operation four miles southwest, on what is now the Congress mine.

About three years ago some Los Angeles parties purchased the Johnnie Consolidated and commenced further development on the property. A shaft was sunk to a depth of 700 feet and with tunnels and crosscuts, over 6000 feet of underground work was done, and 80,000 tons of ore blocked out, it is claimed. The ore is absolutely free milling and Superintendent Perry expects to save at least 90 per cent in the batteries and on the plates. The cyanide plant is merely a precautionary measure.

After the fabulous strike was made on the Crown Point Globe property, which adjoins the Johnnie Consolidated on the south and west, Superintendent Perry decided to drift to the south and west with the hope of tapping this same ore body. Starting about 40 feet from the face of the tunnel on the 400-foot level, where the previous operators had left the ledge, he encountered the same character of ore as found in the Crown Point Globe and of nearly the same richness. As the strike was made about 300 feet from the Globe strike, he figures that he has the same rich ore to a depth of 400 feet and for 300 feet southwest to where the Crown Point Globe was compelled to quit work on account of running into the boundary line of the Johnnie Consolidated. Some of the compressor drills will be kept steadily at work on development.

Mr. Doubleday, vice president and general manager of the Johnnie Consolidated, declares that commencing soon after the first of the year, the mill on this property will turn out $30,000 a month, and will not shut down thereafter except for accidents. J. C. Thompson, a broker from Los Angeles, spent a number of days the past week in looking over various properties in the district. B. Deleray, a mining expert from Nome, Alaska, and Captain L. Smith of the same place, have just finished a minute examination of some of the mines here and Mr. Deleray was so favorably impressed that he expected to return as soon as the Johnnie Consolidated mill started. He said he had never seen anything so rich, except some placers in Alaska.

A MAGNANIMOUS JUDGE.

A notorious mountain moonshiner, familiarly known as Wild Bill, was recently tried before a federal court in Georgia, and was adjudged guilty. Before pronouncing sentence the judge lectured the prisoner on his long criminal record, and at last, informing him that the court entertained no feeling of anger toward him, but felt only unmixed pity, sentenced him to spend six years in the federal prison at Atlanta.

Bill stolidly shifted the quid of tobacco in his mouth and turned to leave the courtroom with the marshal. Once outside, the only thing he said was this:

"Well, I snah am glad he wa'n't mad at me!"—Youth's Companion.

Go to H. J. Hall & Co. and get your whiskey and save from one to two dollars on the gallon. tf

A TOO STRENUOUS DESCENT.

The housewife was showing her new chambermaid through the upstairs when finally they came to a staircase leading down into the rear yard. "Mary," said she, stepping out on the landing, "whenever you wish to pass down to the back yard, go down this way."

Just then the speaker slipped and was precipitated with a great clattering to the bottom.

"Are yez hurt, mum?" cried the affrighted chambermaid, staring down from above.

"No; it's nothing," came the return, as the disheveled mistress rose to her feet in proof.

"Thin ye've got it down foine, mum; but th' job's too shtrenuous fer me!"—Judge.

WASTED MOVEMENT.

There was not even standing room in the 6 o'clock crowded car, but one more passenger, a young woman, wedged her way along just inside the door way. Each time the car took a sudden lurch forward she fell helplessly back, and three times she landed in the arms of a large, comfortable man on the back platform.

The third time it happened he said quietly: "Haden't you better stay here?"—Philadelphia Ledger.
